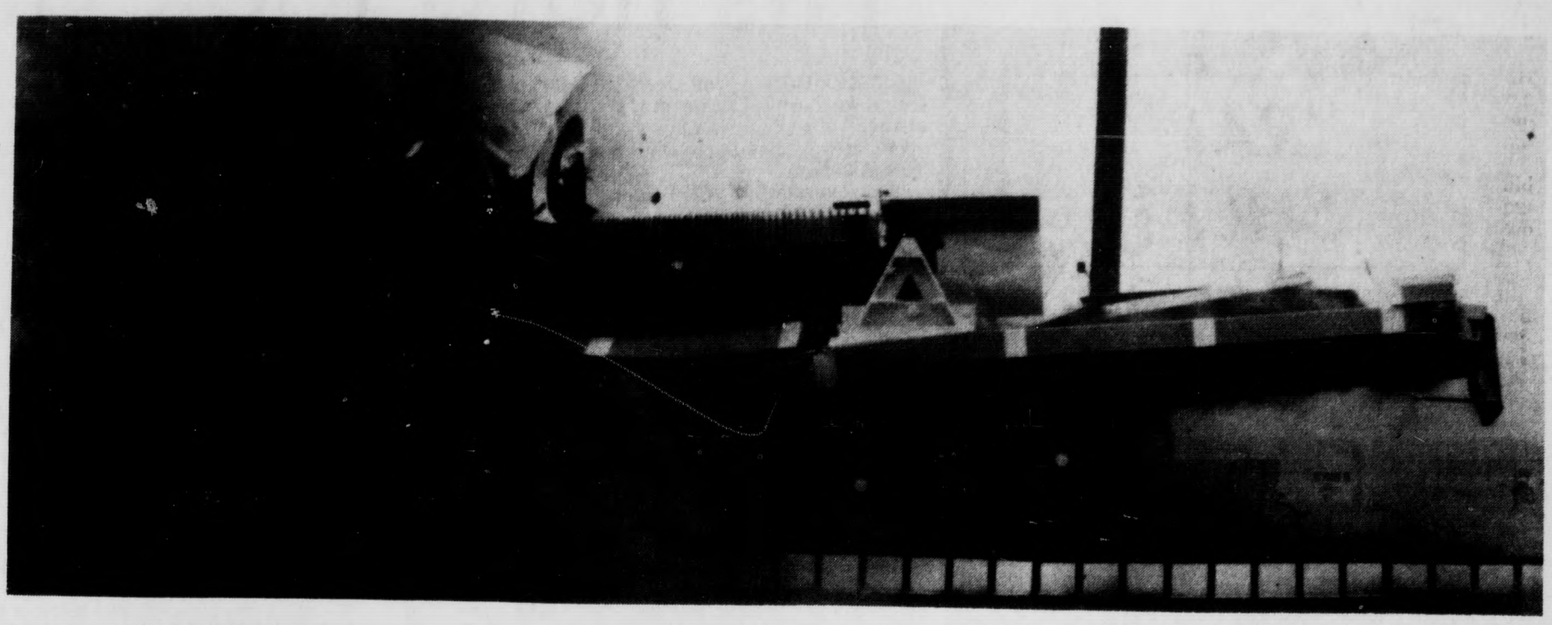
Crash canning



ALBUQUERQUE — While controversy rages over the safety of plutonium shipments, scientists at Sandia Laboratories' New Mexico facility are conducting research into future development of "accident - resistant" shipping containers.

Infrequent shipments of plutonium to the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory have been made in 10- and 30-gallon size casks which have been subjected to drops of only 30 feet.

By ramming a 22-ton cask filled with 477 pounds of uranium into a concrete wall at 84 mph, as pictured at left, Sandia hopes to make nuclear shipments safe. A smaller container is being rocketed 200 feet into steel and concrete at 300 mph to prove its resistance.

Today, Sandia scientists will attempt to cripple a 28-ton shipping cask by smashing it into a concrete wall at 80 mph. Some test results are expected later this year.

For more photos of testing, see page 11.

Livermore reunion 50 years later

LIVERMORE — "Just imagine Raymond Dias with his sleeves down," says the old Livermore High yearbook.

He answered to "Sleepy" in those days — half a century ago — his favorite expression was "You'd be surprised" and his redeeming feature was his smile. His destiny, according to his classmates, was "I.W.W. leader."

Like his classmates, Ray Dias looked impossibly young as he greeted friends and talked over old times at Livermore High's very first Class of '27 reunion held Sunday at the Holiday Inn.

Teachers and students from other Twenties classes were invited too, and 81 people turned out to catch up on old times at the festive dinner party. Photographer Elliott Dopking '29 (who "bequeathed his sheikish ways to Albin Jensen" in the yearbook) captured the moment in pictures.

A poster of the old Livermore High on the wall reminded the group of the days when a small wooden building was enough to hold the entire 160 - student body and the Class of '27 boasted 25 graduates.

Doris Mann '25 traveled all the way from Florida while Velma Kirby '27 made it from Yarnell, Ariz. to the festivities. Both received bottles of Wente Bros. wine to take home.

Leona McGlinchey '27, one of the organizers of the fete, read a few of the old class meeting minutes. One page recorded a decision that all the freshman boys would walk down to the movie theatre at First and Livermore to see "Down to the Sea in Ships" for a 22 - cent admission charge.

After dinner, an opaque projector picture show took the celebrants back to the days when, in the words of Albert Hilke '27, Livermore was "a brickyard, a fuse works, grapes, cattle and hay."

Guest of honor was the beloved "Miss Nissen," 93 - year - old May Nissen, who had taught nearly everyone in the room their Latin, algebra, English, public speaking or dramatics and who claimed to be enjoying the party as much as her former students.

Are Stark's plutonium claims bogus?

LIVERMORE — Lawrence Livermore Laboratory officials are confused about Congressman Pete Stark's announcement of a "moratorium" on plutonium air shipments at Municipal Airport.

"I don't know what's different," said lab spokesman Jeff Garberson about the rules regarding plutonium flights. "The 1976 Public Law significantly reduced air shipments making them the exception rather than the rule."

According to Stark, the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) agreed last week to make "no shipments" in or out of Livermore's airport "except for unusual circumstances."

Stark said the ERDA's review of rules regarding "national security air shipments of plutonium" has resulted in a revision making them more stringent.

In a letter to Stark, ERDA's assistant administrator James L. Liverman said the new rules were to take effect last Friday.

"As a result," Liverman said, "we anticipate that the total number of ERDA air shipments of plutonium nationwide will range between 10 and 20 per year. Since Feb. 12, 1976, there have been three national security air shipments of plutonium into and nine out of Livermore Municipal Airport.

"We have had no instructions like those in the Stark letter," said the lab's Jeff Garberson. "The issuing of press releases from Stark's office has been a constant problem that we are forced to respond to," he said. "It really reduces the effectiveness of our communications." Garberson added that "Stark has consistently refused to discuss the weapons program with us over a period of years."

As an alternative to air shipments, Stark wants to see plutonium shipped by truck. He said that he is far less concerned about a truckload of plutonium being highjacked than he is about the chance of an aircrash involving the material.

Santa Rita fight goes to high court

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — The U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to be the final arbiter between county sheriff Thomas Houchins and the press in their more than two year old fight over access to the Santa Rita jail.

The high court yesterday announced it will hear the sheriff's appeal of two lower court orders directing him to give the press broader access to the jail. The suit was initiated by public television station KQED after the suicide of a maximum security prisoner.

In the meantime, the lower court orders are held in abeyance by a stay issued earlier this year by Supereme Court Justice William Rehnquist.

Initial reports said the court would render a decision this fall. But Deputy County Counsel Kelvin Booty, who petitioned the high court, said he expects to see one sometime within the next year.

Chief County Counsel Richard Moore will argue the case in Washington D.C.

The late U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter ruled in favor of KQED and the NAACP and ordered Houchins to expand press privileges at the sprawling jail near Pleasanton.

His order was upheld by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Booty said his office and attorneys for KQED and the NAACP must submit written briefs, then responses to their opposition's arguments before the court considers oral presentations.

More tax relief

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. said yesterday his property tax relief plan may double in the light of a swelling state budget surplus.

California is expected to collect $2.745 billion more than expected during the next 13 months, double the previous record surplus.

Spending cuts in schools and welfare is partly responsible for the boon, along with increased revenues. For details, see page 13.

Where to give blood

It will be easy in the month of June to donate blood to the Alameda - Contra Costa Blood Bank, thanks to four collections scheduled in the Valley.

The Bloodmobile will be at the Recreation Center, Eighth and H Streets, Livermore, from 2 - 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 7.

On Friday, June 11, the Family Health Care Center, 9260 Alcosta Blvd., will host the unit.

The 91st U.S. Army Maneuver Training Command at Camp Parks, Pleasanton, will be the location of a June 25 blood collection.

Last on the schedule is a stop at 9100 Alcosta Blvd., San Ramon, June 28.

Details are available from the Blood Bank, 654 - 2924.

Joint push for Komandorski

DUBLIN — Proponents of a new Komandorski Village have gained support from a coalition formed to provide information and stimulate interest in the public housing project.

According to Sharon Kosch, president of the American Association of University Women (AAUW), the following organizations prefer replacement instead of rehabilitation of existing buildings in Komandorski Village.

They are AAUW, Dublin Chamber of Commerce, League of Women Voters and the Federated Auxiliary of the International Longshoremens and Warehousemens Union.

Due to the proximity of Dublin to Komandorski Village, Dublin residents will be asked to settle the refurbish versus replacement issue by voting May 31.

Kosch said Village authorities have been told by state officials to tear down the low-income housing facility by Jan. 1, 1979. She and other coalition members contend the Pleasanton Housing Authority has the legal and moral obligation to provide adequate housing for the 150 families living at Komandorski. The proponent group stated rehabilitation would be too costly.

Pleasanton Housing Authority managers said they also preferred total replacement in lieu of rehabilitation.

The Pleasanton Housing Authority was granted control of the facility by the U.S. Army in the 1950's. The Village was built in 1943 as a temporary off-base housing project adjacent to Camp Parks.

According to the new coalition, the project was originally built to meet building codes of that era which do not comply to present codes. — by Sue Vogelsanger

County studies Stanley links

PLEASANTON — The problem of getting gravel trucks off First Street is inching closer to solution, Alameda County Supervisor Valerie Raymond told the city council last night.

Raymond met with the council and brought some county staff members along to discuss problems which the city has with the county.

Jesse Cambra, roads department chief, said the county is doing a time - dash motion study of three possible routes to link Stanley Boulevard to the El Charro Road connection to I-580.

Preliminary reports indicate all three are reasonably close to each other in travel time.

One significant problem, though, is the grade crossing over a wide band of tracks on the north side of Stanley Boulevard, said Cambra.

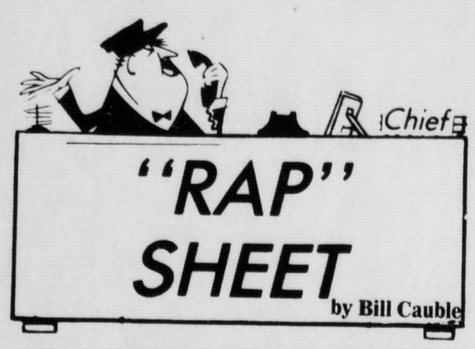
Mayor Robert Philcox said he felt the gravel companies probably would drag their feet in finding a compromise route, since a couple of firms could lose their competive edge over the others.

Raymond said she felt they were proceeding with all due haste.

"They seem to be aware that I don't think 50 years is an acceptable period" to get a solution, said Raymond.

She pointed out that the county has a very significant club to hold over the gravel companies' heads — namely the reclamation plan, which must be filed to continue their gravel mining.

State law requires the Valley's big four mining companies to file a massive reclamation plan for future use of the pits. A preliminary draft was submitted earlier this year.



Youth arrested for altering prescription

LIVERMORE — A 14-year-old Livermore youth who attempted to alter a doctor's prescription for the depressant drug Valium was arrested by police Friday.

According to reports, the youth told officers that a latino man had approached him in the Value Giant store on Chestnut Avenue and offered him $20 to double the prescription's quantity. A pharmacist noticed the alteration and called police.

The suspect was arrested when he returned to the store. He was booked on suspicion of altering a prescription.

Cola taken from little league shed

PLEASANTON — Burglars punched a hole in the wall of the Pleasanton Little League's shed at the Hopyard Road sports park early Sunday and stole an estimated $200 in cola.

Police said the wall had been torn apart, bypassing the burglar alarm. Missing were large quantities of Tab and Coca-cola. There are no suspects.

Little League's refreshment stand burglarized

LIVERMORE — A small amount of change was taken from a refreshment stand in Robert Livermore Park used by the Livermore American Little League, police report.

Burglars apparently punched a hole in the door and reached inside to unlock the deadbolt. Police said this was the first time money had been left in the building. There are no suspects.

Trees damaged at Val Vista Park

PLEASANTON — Vandals broke or damaged a dozen trees located in Val Vista Park early Sunday, police reported.

Several neighbors phoned in complaints of the vandalism but none reported seeing anyone suspicious in the area. There are no suspects.

Nozzles taken from truck in Shannon Avenue driveway

DUBLIN — Four vapor recovery nozzles for gas pumps, valued at $360, were stolen from a truck parked in a Shannon Avenue driveway Thursday.

Randy L. Gregory said the nozzles, still in their original boxes, were taken from the pick-up bed of his truck. There are no suspects.

CB taken from car in Howard Johnson's lot

DUBLIN — Burglars ripped out a center console and an attached citizens band radio from a car parked in Howard Johnsons's parking lot on Regional Street Friday.

Patricia Peroni of Ukiah, staying at the motor lodge, told deputies that burglars had kicked out the car's right side windows to gain entrance. A witness reported seeing three men leaving the scene in a green station wagon.

One fingerprint was lifted from the right side of the car. There are no suspects at this time.

Open garage leads to $300 burgary

LIVERMORE — An open garage on Diane Lane allowed burglars to steal a toolbox valued at $300 Friday, police reported.

James Davis told officers that the box contained a large assortment of hand tools. The theft occured between 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. Friday. There are no suspects.

Briefcase, tapes stolen from unlocked car

LIVERMORE — Burglars removed a briefcase containing 33 8-track tapes from an unlocked car on James Street early Saturday.

Charles Andrew Biffle said the loss was valued at $250. There are no clues in the theft.

His hard look at health plans

LIVERMORE — Gov. Jerry Brown's plan for holding down hospital costs in California "may have a chance" of working if a few major changes are made, speculates Valley Memorial Hospital administrator Tom Andrews.

The governor has proposed setting up a commission to grant or deny increases in not only hospital room rates but in any of the charges that appear on a hospital bill. According to Andrews, it would mean Valley Memorial couldn't raise the price of an Ace bandage, an X - ray or any one of 4,500 other items without applying to the Public Utilities Commission - type body.

President Jimmy Carter also has an answer to the health cost problem. He would place a 9 per cent per year ceiling on cost increases of hospital bills — a solution which is "just absurd," Andrews says flatly.

The busy administrator spends two hours each day reading a stack of journals, newsletters and newspapers to keep up with the daily changes in health care legislation. He also stays in touch with other health officials and visits Sacramento regularly to stay on top of vital decisions concerning VMH.

The concern over health costs comes about, says Andrews, because 10 years ago Americans were paying $32 to $35 per person, per year for health care. Now, we're spending more than $700 per head. In the next five years the cost is expected to rise 15 per cent per year.

Why? Sophisticated new machines, technology and medical specialties, some of which cost a fortune, are providing Americans with "the best medical system on earth," Andrews believes.

He asserts, "The best medicine ever known to man is being practiced in the Bay Area today."

For example, a new "computerized axial tomogarphy scanner" is taking the place of the conventional X - ray for many diagnostic procedures at VMH. The machine cost an enormous sum and a CAT scanner head X - ray costs $250. But the scanner can photograph soft tissue and give the physician far more information than the old style X - ray.

Supply costs continue to go up, physicians raise their rates, the hospital staff negotiate their cost - of - living raises, all adding to the total hospital bill. Meanwhile, the price of health insurance eats up people's consumable income.

"The major pressure for this is coming from lobbyists for the big industries auto, aluminum, glass — because they know that when you pay more for health care you can't afford that car or toaster," Andrews notes.

Brown's health costs program could work if a few critical points are built into it, says the administrator. One is assurance that the federal government would reimburse hospitals for Medicare and MediCal patients at the same rate private patients are paying.

Currently, VMH gets about 80 per cent reimbursement and makes up the difference by charging other patients more.

Andrews compares a hospital's function to a supermarket. On the shelves, instead of food, are the hospital's services. The buyer is the physician, choosing an X - ray here, an operation there, a prescription to add to the patient's "grocery basket." And the fourth party is the independent payer — the insurance company or the government — who doesn't know who the patient was, what he needed or whether the items on the "grocery bill" were appropriate.

In order not to destroy the "supermarket," warns Andrews, any proposed agency or commission must be made sure all customers pay the same "shelf price" and that pressure to be efficient doesn't mean cutting out valuable, but unprofitable, services such as maternity, pediatrics, research and teaching.

Murray candidate closeup

Jessie Kobiyashi, apparently top choice for the position of superintendent of the Murray School District has been assistant superintendent of the 2,300 - student Whisman district in Mountain View since 1974.

By comparison, Murray, also a kindergarten through eighth grade district has 5,248.

Trustees of the Murray district and Lizann Kendall, co-chairperson of the Local Advisory Committee, visited the home district of the leading choice for superintendent last week.

Other finalists for the position, beside Kobayashi were William Grafft, assistant superintendent of the Orinda School District; Floyd Davis, Seattle City School District, and Byron Antcliff, Huron School District, Wayne County, Michigan.

A review of Mrs. Kobayashi's background reveals considerable classroom teaching experience at the elementary level, six years as director of curriculum (1968-74) with the Whisman district, and numerous statewide education committee positions.

The latter affiliations have included member of the state committee on curriculum and instruction, 1975-77; member of the state committee on teacher preparation and licensing, 1974-75; chairwoman, state special committee on Title IX, since 1976; chairwoman, state women's caucus, 1975.

She has also authored articles for the California School Board Journal on Title IX, affirmative action.

Should Mrs. Kobayashi, who holds a doctorate in education from the University of the Pacific, be appointed superintendent, she would be the first woman ever to hold the superintendent's position of a Valley school district— other than one-school districts.

A native of Gilroy who attended high school in Madera, the 44-year old Mrs. Kobayashi has spend 21 of her 23 years in the education field in the Whisman district. From 1957 to 1959 she was an elementary school teacher in Eatontown, New Jersey.

Appointment of a new superintendent to replace Dr. Donald Williams is expected at the board meeting of Monday, June 6.

Good neighbors

Following complaints that this federal sign for the First Street overpass project was blocking local businesses from view, the city moved the sign away from the road and placed it in conformance with the sign ordinance. "We've tried to be good neighbors," said project coordinator Jack Becker, who was unaware of the city's rule against signs being perpendicular to the roadway when the sign was erected.

Long distance chase ends with a blast

LIVERMORE — A 35-minute car chase, involving eight police cars from several agencies and reaching speeds of more than 100 mph, ended on Interstate 580 near here Sunday night after a police sergeant blasted out the suspect vehicle's left rear tire.

The car and its three occupants were first seen parked on a school lawn late Saturday in San Jose. Police watched the vehicle but took no action because the car cleared police computers.

The car started to pull away when the driver apparently saw police, reversed his course and took off.

The pursuit mounted as Milpitas and Fremont police units joined in the pursuit. As many as eight patrol cars chased the suspect north on Interstate 680, although one car dropped out when it ran out of gas.

The caravan wound its way up Interstate 580 in the fast lane when a sargeant leveled his shotgun at the vehicle and blew out its left rear tirp.

Booked on suspicion of reckless driving and resisting arrest was 19-year-old Howard Allen Garner. Police offered no reason why Garner attempted to elude them.

Progress report on a bunch of noise

LIVERMORE — The planning commission tonight will deal with a noisy subject.

The planners will meet with the city's noise committee to coordinate discussions on the progress of a noise element to the city's general plan.

A recent state law now requires more detailed analysis of the noise contours spreading from heavy noise generators, according to Planning Director Howard Nies.

Although noise contour lines are discussed in the draft document, Nies said the noise element should now include contours from freeways, railroads, airports and major city streets.

Some calculations were received from the state department of transportation Nies said, but the new law will require adjustments to the figures. He also indicated a request for railroad information has not yet been answered.

The planners' study session will also include a look at the submission of plot plans and site plans in conjunction with conditional use permit applications.

Parks open despite drought

LIVERMORE — Dry weather in the Livermore area may not require the closing of some parks because of fire danger, according to Bill Payne, general manager of the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District.

"Most of our parks are neighborhood and community types," Payne told The Times yesterday. "They wouldn't have the fire danger in wilderness areas like Sycamore Grove Park."

"We have taken all the precautions for water in Sycamore," he added, noting the park will probably be open in two or three weeks.

No plans have been made yet for the opening of the park, but Payne said he is giving some thought to an opening ceremony that "wouldn't be a formal thing" and a picnic.

He did not rule out the possibility that there could be some "critical fire days posted by the state where we may have to consider not opening the park all the time."

Payne will be presenting next year's budget to the LARPD board of directors 7:30 tonight in a special meeting. He said the preliminary $2,187,185 budget doesn't include many new things. Last year's budget was $1,807,614 and Payne said the increase is for inflation.

After LARPD board members review the document and make any necessary changes, Payne expects to have a final budget ready for the regular June meeting.

Late tribute

Pleasanton Presbyterian Community Church gained belated, but still happy tribute from the Bicentennial Committee when two members of that committee delivered a "Heritage Site" plaque to the church's pastor on Sunday. The handsome plaque, one of a score affixed to century - old structures throughout the community, was not assigned to the Neal Street edifice in 1976 "because of plans to relocate the building," the Heritage Committee explained. Now that Pleasanton Presbyterian Church is assured of a long future at that historic location, the delayed ceremony seemed appropriate, even in 1977. Brad Hirst and Callie Heinbaugh share the big moment with Reverend Robert Vogt.

Valley obituaries

Anna R. Craig

Anna R. Craig, 48, a native of Kansas and long time Pleasanton resident, died Saturday in Livermore.

She is survived by husband Howard Craig of Pleasanton; sons Thomas and Darrell Craig, both of Livermore; Gregg Craig of Pleasanton and Terry Craig with the U.S. Army in Germany.

She also leaves brothers Homer Paslay, Missouri, and Overton, David and Louis Paslay, all of California; sisters Rose Key, Missouri, and Mary Patterson of Kansas.

Seven grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m., Wednesday, in the chapel of the Callaghan Mortuary, 3833 East Ave., Livermore. Interment will be in Memory Gradens Cemetery.

Valerie Norman

Valerie Kay Norman, 39, a native of California and three-year Dublin resident, died Sunday in an auto accident in San Leandro.

She is survived by husband S.E. "Bud" Norman, son Michael Jeffery and daughter Kathy Ann, all of Dublin, and daughter Joani Patrice Norman with the U.S. Army in Germany.

She also leaves her mother Mrs. Katherine Hawkins, Bishop, Calif., and sister Alene Greenland of Los Angeles.

Services will be held at 10 a.m., Thursday, in the Graham — Hitch Mortuary, 675 St. John St., Pleasanton, with the Rev. Ward Tannenberg officiating.

Interment in Oakmont Cemetery in Lafayette will follow.

American families not so bad off

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Are American families struggling to make ends meet?

Some of the latest statistics from Washington suggest it isn't so.

Personal income rose strongly in February and March, and the improvement continued into April, when $11.1 billion was added to the total, bringing the seasonally adjusted annual rate to $1.5 trillion.

The biggest expansion ever in consumer installment credit, some $2.72 billion, was recorded in March. Now the total of installment debt outstanding stands at nearly $180 billion, 11.8 per cent above a year ago.

These numbers really don't give a true indication of just how strong the trend is, because they are net balances, arrived at by deducting loans paid from new loans extended.

In terms of new credit obligations assumed, March was the fourth straight month in which a new record was set. The month's total was $18.25 billion, reduced to a net of $2.72 billion by $15 billion to $16 billion of repayments.

So, you say, people have to borrow in order to keep house and home together. No, that's not the answer. People borrowed to buy automobiles and to improve their homes and to take vacations.

Installment credit, say those who study it, usually is taken out for very positive reasons, to buy something a family might have been considering for months rather than just to make ends meet.

Robert Johnson, executive director of the Credit Research Center at Purdue University, calls credit "an expression of confidence." People now are feeling right about taking on commitments that might extend years into the future.

And there is good reason for them to feel that way. Johnson points out that in the final quarter of 1976 people added far more to their financial assets than to their debts.

"In total," he observes, "consumers' acquisition of financial assets was almost double the rise in their liabilities." Additions to time and savings accounts alone totaled $105 billion, or $28 billion more than the increase in home mortgage and consumer credit.

The stage was thus set for the next act, which was to go out and make the financial commitments to the future that his financial security permitted. It is now taking place.

Are Americans mortgaging that future?

Not at all, says Johnson. "Repayments as a percentage of disposable personal income in the first quarter were only 14.7 per cent. We've seen it as high as 16 or 17 per cent."

But with all these figures you cannot really dismiss as a myth the complaint of some people that they can barely make ends meet. The figures cited are aggregates. Aggregates produce generalizations and generalizations mean exceptions.

Johnson believes that some middle-income families are exceptions. For them, he says, "it must be an incredible struggle just to keep food on the table regularly."

Such middle-income families, he comments, have none of the advantages of the rich and few of the subsidies of the poor.

Contra Costa drug, jail programs cited

MARTINEZ — Four Contra Costa County programs have been chosen for honors by the National Association of Counties (NACO).

Bernard F. Hillenbrand, executive director of NACO, said special recognition will be given to the Discovery Centers drug abuse program, the county's in-home care review team, the public defender's jail liaison worker project and the sheriff's "correction without punishment" personnel program.

The Discovery Centers program educates people about drug abuse. The Centers handle an average of 10,000 information and crises phone calls yearly. Counseling and drop-in activities are also provided. State officials have praised a residential treatment program for drug addicts offered by Discovery House.

The Medical-Social Review Team is composed of social workers, public health nurses, public health social workers, physicians and other county employes.

The team's goal is to delay or prevent out-of-home placement for low-income aged, blind or disabled persons. Services provided include household maintenance, meal services, and non-medical and specialized personal care.

The Public Defender's Liaison Worker is a social worker hired to find alternatives to jail for low-income persons. Many such persons have been placed in rehabilitation programs. Most of them are making successful adjustments.

Correction without punishment is a new concept in the discipline of law enforcement personnel. It was initiated by the sheriff-corner's department. The principle is to bring improvement through training and counseling rather than threat and punishment. The program is based on helping the employe do a better job.

The 1977 achievement awards will be presented at NACO's annual meeting in July in Detroit. Contra Costa County has now won 15 awards in the four years it has entered the national program.

NACO is the only national organization to represent and serve county government in the United States. Its membership represents well over 1,000 counties serving about 95 per cent of the nation's population.

Everyone had a joyful time

This was Livermore High School 50 years ago, located at Eighth and H streets in Livermore. A recreation center and softball field occupy the site now. The Livermore class of 1927 held its 50 year reunion in town Sunday.

PARTY FOR GIRLS

The Freshman boys gave a party to the Freshman girls of the high school on Friday, Oct. 12th...

After the games there were several dances and then Russell Crane announced that refreshments would be served. Robert Ferguson, assisted by Leo Raboli, Gray Teeter and Phil Bernal, served the refreshments, which consisted of ice cream and cake. Favors were passed around and after everyone had plenty of ice cream and cake, dancing was continued until 10 o'clock, when the party came to an end.

Everyone had a joyful time and Mr. Lee said we could have another party soon.

Reunion highlight for Ray Dias and Leona McGlinchy was greeting former teacher May Nissen.

EBMUD water use down half

OAKLAND — East Bay Municipal Utility District (EBMUD) customers are using less than 50 per cent of the water they used last year, officials report.

Water consumption by the district's 1.1 million customers is averaging 122 million gallons a day — 46 per cent of last year's usage of 265 million gallons.

David Vossbrink, EBMUD spokesman, said part of the reduction may be a result of the recent unseasonal rain. May has been the wettest month of the year, and the wettest month since July, 1976.

"December, January, February and March are usually the wettest," Vossbrink noted. "But this May has topped them all."

February was the previous wettest month with 3.5 inches of rain at EBMUD's Salt Springs testing center in the Mother Lode, but May has had 4.55 inches so far at the same testing site.

But, Vossbrink said, even with the rain the drought picture hasn't improved tremendously.

The runoff this year has been 75,000 acre feet — 10,000 acre feet more than was expected when a rationing second, more stringent plan was put into effect in April.

Pleasanton overcomes the fear of clay

PLEASANTON — Michelangelo, Brancusi, Borglum, yes, all the great sculptors and sculptresses — they all started by just playing around with clay.

And that's really all there is to it, but some people are afraid to start sculpting and as a result the clay sculpture class offered by the Pleasanton Recreation Department has never been held because of poor response from the public.

But now, thanks to a recent exhibit at the Cultural Arts Center, citizens are seeing the possibilities of sculpting statues and other objects in clay. Director of Recreation Robert Caporusso expects these citizens to troop down to registration for Pam David's clay sculpture class. Registration begins June 6, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and continues from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. the next day at 4477 Black Ave., the Cultural Arts Center.

David, who learned clay sculpture at Chabot College, will try to get folks to overcome their timidity with that pliable mixture of dirt and water, showing them all the little tricks of sculpture.

"People tend to be afraid of sculpture," said David. "They think it's hard. But they should give it a try. It's fun to work with your hands. This is a beginning sculpture class and anyone can do it."

Pam David has been devoted to art since childhood. She experiments with all art media and has batiked most of her clothing, a nice touch which makes it very distinctive. She hasn't done anything commercially, but concentrates on making gifts for friends or maybe doing up a piece of jewelry or a batiked dress on order.

Maid of Pleasanton pageant this Sunday

Ten young Pleasanton women will seek the tiara and sash currently worn by Julie Hemming when the Maid of Pleasanton Pageant is conducted Sunday at Castlewood Country Club.

For the first time in Pageant history, the finals will be an afternoon affair at Castlewood Country Club.

The luncheon and program commences at 1 p.m. with Jerry Havel of KQIQ serving as master of ceremonies.

The winner will represent Pleasanton in the Maid of Alameda County Pageant Sunday, June 26 at the Fairgrounds Amphitheatre.

The last two Pleasanton standard - bearers have captured the Maid of Alameda County title and finished as runnerups to Maid of California at Cal Expo.

The day Miller did a favor for President Carter

Lesher News Bureau

CONCORD — Being handpicked to carry the President's legislation doesn't always leave a congressman in an enviable position.

Rep. George Miller, D-Martinez, told guests at his fund-raising "birthday party" Sunday how he had been called on personally by President Carter to introduce an amendment to a federal funding bill.

"The President called me to ask me to carry an amendment to cut out all the water projects of the other congressman," he recalled wryly.

The mission was doomed from the start, but Miller gamely went through with it, introducing the amendment later that day. But promised support from Carter didn't come through as expected.

The rest of congress took little time in turning back the measure resoundingly, Miller recalled, adding that it's true that the Carter forces need to do some work on congressional liaison.

"I can't wait for him to call me again," he said.

Noting the success so far of important legislation affecting foster care of homeless children, Miller said it has made him "one of the happiest people in congress."

They're Listeners

A friend at the end of the telephone

Her children are grown, so Barbara gives much of her time now to Connection.

Neighbors rarely are up in the night's late hours to notice a lone light shining from Barbara's window, a sign that she's just a step away from her telephone ... waiting for a call.

A comfortably relaxed woman with a ready laugh, Barbara is committed to helping the sleepless individuals who can't get through a night alone. Her children are grown, and today the Livermore housewife commits much of her time to people she has never seen.

"We're a friend at the end of the telephone," explains Barbara, adding that many of her closest friends have no idea of her involvement with Connection. Anonymity is the key to the organization, which was founded seven years ago to provide lonely or depressed callers with sympathetic listeners.

"We aren't professional counselors," points out Barbara, "but we've been trained in listening skills, and we can sometimes provide alternatives to problems."

The 40 volunteers who are now involved with Connection are everything from physicists to housewives, says Barbara. "But housewives are hard to come by anymore," she admits, "because they're all going back to school."

Posters, ads in high school yearbooks and radio spots help spread the word that Listeners, as th volunteers have dubbed themselves, are more than willing to spend as much time talking on the phone to a troubled individual as needed.

Peak call periods fall between 7 and 9 p.m., says Barbara. "We're busy all night sometimes ... maybe it's the full moon, or maybe it's because people just can't sleep and need to talk."

The Listeners, who use fictitious names over the phone, all work from their homes. A central office connects calls through a divertor, an expensive device that takes most of Connection's budget.

A non-profit organization, Connection exists solely on contributions and occasional fundraising efforts like garage sales.

"We don't want funding from the government," stresses Barbara, "because that would involve a specific type of program. We want to adapt to community needs."

Monthly meetings keep the volunteers up-to-date on listening skills and helpful referral agencies. "We talk about the problems we haven't known how to handle," explains Barbara, who believes many of the volunteers are good at their job "because we've lived through some of the depression."

It's just chance that has put Barbara on her end of the line, she says. "Basically we're not very different — it's just that we don't happen to be in that state right now."

Women between 30 and 45 are the biggest callers, many of them unable to handle problems with their children or marriages. "Usually callers don't tell us their names," states the 25-year Livermore resident. "We do get to know some of them, though. If one person calls frequently the problem is usually loneliness."

Whatever the problem, Listeners are there. For more information or to just talk, call 443-2123 day or night.

I THINK I'M IN LOVE WITH A PIRATE KING

A wonderful time was had by close to a thousand people at "A Victorian Evening," a performance of Pirates of Penzance, by the Lamplighters, San Francisco's Musical Theatre at Amador High School on Saturday night.

Gilbert and Sullivan, those zanies, entertain us still with their wild tales. In this operetta, young Frederic's nurse was told to apprentice him to become a pilot, but she didn't get the instructions right, and she apprenticed him to a band of rowdy pirates instead.

He is now 21, and his time of indenture is drawing to a close. He has a sense of duty to the pirates, but when he is free of them, he has vowed to exterminate them.

Frederic's nurse, Ruth, now has fallen in love with the boy, and wants to marry him. She has told him she is beautiful, and he, not having ever seen any other women, agrees to marry her, 'though he is 21, and she is 47.

However, Major-General Stanley, and a bevy of pretty young things, arrives. Frederic gets a look at the girls, and renounces his promise to marry Ruth. He falls for Mabel instead.

At this point, the pirates seize the other girls and threaten them with "immediate marriage." But Major-General Stanley plays on the pirates' sympathies by telling them he is an orphan. It is against their pirate rules to pick on orphans, so they let him and the girls go.

Frederic, in the meantime, plans a police assault on the pirate gang, but Ruth and the Pirate King (Oh, what a handsome fellow) discover that Frederic's birthday is on February 29, so he has really only had five birthdays, not 21, and he must remain with the pirates.

Being a dutiful person, Frederic shifts his allegiance back to the pirates, and reveals that the Major-General is not really an orphan.

The band of three policemen attack the pirate gang however, and although the pirates have the bobbies completely beaten, the pirates are talked into surrendering "in Queen Victoria's name."

Because the pirates are said to be "noblemen who have gone wrong" they are permitted to marry the Major-General's wards.

The catchy music, the clever lyrics, and excellent performances by the Lamplighters, kept the audience laughing, and St. Clair's Episcopal Church building fund benefited.

The audience, in a lighthearted mood, drove to church members' homes after the performance for Victorian refreshments and to be hosted by some very nice people. And a good time was had by all. Let's do it again.

A man who's a musical quilter

In this age of role reversal, and liberation from traditional stereotypes, the story of a man who enjoys quilting may stir up mild interest but will raise few eyebrows anymore. After all, famous football players have been knitting for years.

Yet this story of a husband and wife, who spend nearly all of their leisure time working together on a variety of projects and still maintain an enviable marital harmony is worth investigating. Such a couple is Don and Claudette Lambert of Livermore.

"Our whole life has been a venture together. We've always been a team," declares Claudette matter-of-factly. "We probably enjoy a lot of neutral interests because we have diversified interests of our own."

Don's avid interest in quilting turns out to be a joint venture — his drafting abilities make him a great designer, while Claudette's experience as a seamstress solves construction problems. Both have a hand at executing the tiny quilting stitches which complete the project.

"Our thumbs were sore for weeks afterwards," laughs Claudette as they recall the time they made a queen size quilt, a wedding gift for a nephew.

They take great pride in presenting a new mother with an original handmade baby quilt for her first-born. Their first quilt was made for the first child of Nan Davies, Don's music teacher. Embroidered on the face of the quilt are several bars of a melody, composed by Don.

The Lamberts' latest project was the donation of two squares to the fabulous quilt constructed by members of the Nursery School Scholarship Fund. Forty-two exquisite and imaginative squares, including an embroidered Snoopy sketch designed by the renowned Charles Schultz, makes the quilt a treasure.

As part of their efforts to promote the benefit drawing of the quilt, NSSF members will stage a quilt show Wednesday, May 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the Almond Avenue School in Livermore. Expert Dee Wilson will conduct a color slide show of quilt patterns and refreshments will be served. Guests are invited to bring a quilt to share with other enthusiasts, and donation is $1.

Don Lambert, who has worked at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory for 20 years, describes his outside interests in music, quilting and calligraphy as "fantastic relaxers." Claudette believes that her interests in knitting, sewing, music, quilting and puppet making are not only relaxing but energizing too. They both manage exceptionally long and full days.

Perhaps the secret to their success in achieving that golden balance of work and play, togetherness and independence is their strong belief in transcendental meditation.

They are convinced that time can be found for the great variety of experiences that life offers.

Seniors open house planned

The Livermore Senior Service Center will celebrate Senior Citizens' Month by inviting area seniors to visit the facility for refreshments and entertainment Friday, May 27 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. The facility is located at 8th and H Streets, Livermore.

The staff will be on hand to answer questions about services and functions of the Center, which is sponsored by the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District. Information will be available on free checkups, blood pressure readings, eye exams, classes, taxes, legal aid, welfare and medical services.

Transportation will be available for seniors who would like to attend this special event at the Center. Call 455-4100 for information.

Community-wide volunteer needs

The Valley Volunteer Bureau is a clearinghouse for the valley community where human resources and needs are matched. The Bureau maintains an up-to-date inventory of types of volunteers needed. To find out how you can help call the Bureau at 462-3570 or stop by its office at the YMCA, 287 Rose Ave., Pleasanton. Office hours are from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Monday through Friday.

AMONG CURRENT NEEDS

- Mature volunteers needed to do valley phone survey on transportation needs of the elderly and handicapped. Training provided on June 1. Survey to be made from June 8 to 15. Phoning can be done in volunteer's home or at LARPD office.
- R.N. needed to do blood pressure reading monthly on 12 seniors at small rest home.
- Volunteers needed to do office and phone work for volunteer coordinator at local prison.
- Advocates for Women Program looking for volunteers to do outreach work for them in the valley.
- Male volunteers needed to work with small groups of fatherless children (ages 7 to 12).
- Volunteers needed to do pre-release interviewing at prison.
- Volunteer to do typing at city library.

Ice Follies

The dean of ice comics, Mr. Frick, and Sesame Street's "Big Bird," played by Chris Harrison, are two of the stars in this year's all-new edition of the Easter Seal Ice Follies, premiering tonight and continuing through Sunday, May 29 at the Oakland Coliseum.

Pup too rough?

"Puppy Socialization" is a class being offered for dog owners through the Del Valle Dog Club of Livermore. The 7:30 p.m., Monday night sessions are held at The Barn on Pacific Street in Livermore.

Beginner Obedience classes for senior citizen and youth groups are scheduled on Tuesday nights, and Wednesday night classes cover all phases of obedience training. Pre-registration is required for most classes.

For more information, call Carole Wilson at 455-4158 or drop by The Barn to observe classes in session.

Haven hosts bake sale

Tri-Valley Haven for Women will hold a bake/no bake sale Friday and Saturday, June 3 and 4 in front of the Livermore Safeway store, 1554 First St.

Proceeds from the sale of homemade and donated goods will go toward the establishment of a shelter for battered women in the valley. Those wishing to give baked goods or a tax deductible donation should contact Donna McAlice at 443-3158 or Claire Nelson at 447-6317.

V.F.W.

The Charles Auer Veterans of Foreign War Post 9968 will sponsor a Memorial Day ceremony at Old St. Raymond's Cemetery, Dublin, Sunday, May 29 at 11 a.m. The event is co-hosted by American Legion Post 606.

School merger: 'Robin Hood in reverse'

PLEASANT HILL — Ed Best, president of the San Ramon Valley Unified School District Board of Trustees, last night told a Contra Costa County committee on school district organization that Walnut Creek's unification proposal poses major facilities and financial problems for the San Ramon district.

Best, protesting Walnut Creek's bid to annex a portion of the Alamo area from the San Ramon district, told the county school board, sitting as the organization committee, that unification would take facilities and resources away from a district "whose growth rate is already taxing these facilities and resources to their limits."

Joined by Superintendent Allan Petersdorf, Best said the once rebuffed unification attempt would "put a major additional financial burden on the district's taxpayers who already have a school tax rate significantly higher than any of the other districts involved, and who currently suffer with the second highest total tax rate in the county."

The overflow audience at the Pleasant Hill High School library heard a steady stream of speakers offering "pro" and "con" comments on unification. A sizable percentage were from the Lafayette district and expressed opposition to any further annexation attempts by the small Walnut Creek K-8 district.

Best referred to a "reverse Robin Hood effect" the proposal could have on such districts as San Ramon.

"The unification proposal seems flagrantly unjust in that it permits people in the proposed area to vote themselves lower taxes while, at the same time, increasing the taxes for those in the remaining portion of the San Ramon Valley Unified School District who already pay school taxes 16 per cent greater than the average of the taxpayers in the other affected districts. It is estimated," continued Best, "that the taxes for those in the remaining portion of the San Ramon district would have to be increased by approximately 24 cents to make up for the lower assessed valuation/average daily attendance."

Walnut Creek board members and residents speaking in support noted the 14,000 signatures collected.

The Contra Costa County board will send a report of its findings on the matter to the state Board of Education, probably in late June.

The state body could order an election, which would most likely be held in November.

Livermore schools losing 6 teachers at end of term

LIVERMORE — Six teachers and two principals' secretaries will be retiring in June, according to a list approved by the school board recently.

Announcing their retirement are: Barbara Good, kindergarten teacher at Almond Avenue School; Tressie Kirkman, home economics teacher, Livermore High; Charles Manterfield, social science teacher, Mendenhall School; Marjorie Mason, first and second grade teacher, Fifth Street School; Florence Sheppard, counselor, Granada High and Malvern Sweet, fifth grade teacher, Marylin Avenue School.

Also, Marjorie Bischofberger, principal's secretary, Fifth Street; and Helen Pilione, principal's secretary, Henry School.

Information on retirement dinners is available at the retirees' school offices.

The district will also be losing Sharon Boat, first and second grade teacher at Arroyo Seco School, who had been on leave of absence this year and John Jones, physical education teacher at Livermore High.

Also resigning are Dorothy Bettencourt, cafeteria assistant and van driver; Carolyn Johnson, bus driver; Monique Kirschten, paraprofessional at Granada High; and Donna Wood, accounts clerk with the district business services department.

Leaves of absence have been granted to Patricia Cavanaugh, first grade teacher at Green School; Carol Clark, fourth grade teacher at Arroyo Mocho School; Diana Green, special education teacher at Livermore High and Karen Low, second grade teacher at Green School.

Carmelita Corrie was hired as a playground supervisor for Marylin Avenue School.

Livermore seniors win Lab scholarships

LIVERMORE — Therese Gerigk and John D. Pfeifer, two local high school seniors, have won scholarships which honor the memory of Dr. Theodore Merkle, a distinguished Lawrence Livermore Laboratory scientist who died of cancer 11 years ago.

The $350 awards were made available to any Livermore or Granada High School senior planning to pursue a degree at a University of California campus in physics, engineering, biology or medicine, the fields of Dr. Merkle's interests.

The winners were chosen on the basis of the students scholastic achievement and participation in school and community affairs.

Gerigk, the winner from Livermore High, plans to attend UC Davis and earn a bachelors degree in mechanical engineering with a concentration in biomedical engineering.

Pfeifer will major in math and physics at UC San Diego.

The awards are made possible by a private fund raised in memory of Dr. Merkle, former associate director and head of the LLL physics department. Dr. Merkle was an internationally known authority on reactor physics technology, and he was highly regarded locally for his contributions to Valley civic affairs.

The scholarships will be present in an award ceremony June 8 at the Lawrence Lab.

Murray teachers' new chief

Allan Petersdorf, Jr. has been elected president of the Murray Teachers Association to succeed Bob Kroetch.

Petersdorf, son of San Ramon school district superintendent Allan Petersdorf, is a fifth grade teacher at Donlon School.

He has been active in the teacher's association as building representative and community relations co-chairman.

Petersdorf said his new responsibility is "A challenge to continue with the programs and working relationships that have been formed over the last 12 months under the leadership of Bob Kroetch."

Working very closely with Petersdorf will be two-time vice president Mary Bobet, secretary Linda Pearson, and treasurer Gloria Chapman. The newly-elected officers will assume office at a representative council meeting to be held on Tuesday.

Castlewood cuts down field

Scores were high, but the spirits of eight golfers were soaring still higher after 36 holes of qualifying for the United States Open Golf Championship yesterday at Castlewood Country Club's valley course.

The eight players, only two of whom broke par, have actually cleared only one hurdle on the way to the prestigious national tourney. They'll now travel to Saticoy Country Club in Ventura for the regional championship that will send a contigent of non-exempt West Coast pros and amateurs to the Open.

Ron Hoyt and Mike Bodney tied for medalist honors with one-under par 142's, three shots ahead of their nearest rival, former touring pro Bruce Summerhays, who fired a 145.

Bodney had the days best 18-hole score on the rough - hewn lower course, shooting a 67 in the morning.

At 146 was Andy Blossom, the recently graduated junior star from the Central Valley with four players tied at 147 to round out the contigent of advancees from Castlewood (further Northern California qualifying was held at Almaden Park Golf Course in San Jose).

Mike Barr, University of California coach Bob Boldt, Ernie George and Rick Rhoads made up the group at 147. Blossom and Barr were the only amateurs to advance and as such draw a bye from the first cut at Saticoy.

Only two non-qualifiers could break 150. Mike Stoltz carded a 148 while Walnut Creek high school star Keith Clearwater scored 149.

The top local finisher was Dublin's Chris Cantalini. The ex-Dublin High School and Chabot College player tied with former Castlewood pro Mike Watney and Hayward amateur Bill Malley at 150.

Las Positas' assistant pro Doug Brooke shot a 77 in the morning and had more trouble on the second loop to finish at 161, still good enough to beat 14 others in the field.

How Don did it

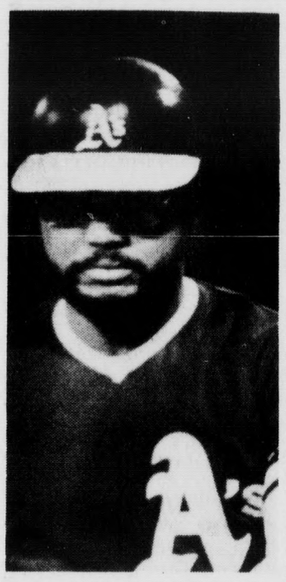
Just Ask

The tipoff:

Pete Ranzany, a hot new middleweight who's been flourishing in his home environment of Sacramento, Calif., will be a shot in the arm to boxing now that he's being exposed in bigger markets — and he's a natural for TV's renewed interest in the sport.

Q. When the Dodgers' Don Drysdale was establishing his record for most consecutive scoreless innings pitched (in 1968?), he hit a San Francisco batter with a pitch late in a game with the bases loaded. The batter, however, wasn't awarded first base and Drysdale went on to record another shutout. I say the batter was Dick Dietz; my friend says Ron Hunt. Please settle the dispute. — Paul Simon, Port Hueneme, Calif.

The batter was catcher Dick Dietz. Drysdale was on his way to the record of 58 consecutive scoreless innings, set in 1968. The bases were loaded. An inside pitch hit Dietz, but umpire Harry Wendelstedt contended the batter didn't make a sincere effort to get out of the way of the pitch and refused to award him first base. Drysdale retired the batter and went on to the record.



Reggie Bar Jackson

Q. One of my friends said Lou Boudreaux of the Cleveland Indians was baseball's youngest manager at 27. Another guy told me Buck Harris of Washington was the youngest at 24. Please, wise one, give me the correct answer. — Paul Rayfield, Phildadelphia, Pa.

Oh, beseeching one, you got it just the opposite way. Boudreau became the youngest manager in American League history in 1942 at the age of 24. When Stanley (Bucky Harris) took over the Senators as their playing pilot in 1924, he was immediately dubbed "The Boy Manager." He was 27. The Washington team won a pennant his first year.

Q. Reggie Jackson wants a candy bar named after him, too, referring to the Baby Ruth candy bar. This candy was not named after Babe Ruth, the ball player, as everyone believes. It seems that there was a baby girl named Ruth that the candy bar was named after and had no connection to the Babe. If you could clear this up, a lot of fans would appreciate it. — Frank Sanders, Rockledge, Pa.

The Baby Ruth candy bar was on the market long before tha Babe became famous, but the manufacturer did capitalize on his renown by signing up the slugger to promote it. Now, if you follow your favorite newspaper, you know that a Reggie Bar has already been announced for marketing.

Q. Can you tell me why the St. Louis Cardinals traded pitcher Lynn McGlothen to the Giants for third baseman Ken Reitz? I thought they were trying to rebuild their pitching staff. The Cardinals traded away Reitz just last year! — Jay Redfern, Galesburg, Ill.

The prime reason behind the trade for the Cardinals was they wanted to move Hector Cruz, who debuted as their third baseman last year, to the outfield, where they felt he would be more comfortable. They reasoned they could afford to give up McGlothen, who was 13-15 last year, because they had picked up Larry Dierker, who was 13-14, from Houston and also hardthrowing John D'Aquisto from the Giants.

Q. Who was the goalie for the gold medal - winning U.S. hockey team in the Olympic Games at Squaw Valley? — Lucien Hencek, Upper Darby, Pa.

The goal tender was Jack McCartan of St. Paul, Minn., a University of Minnesoata product, who was sensational in crucial victories over Canada and Russia, making 39 saves alone against the Canadians.

Parting shot:

Best sports rule suggestion I've heard in the last year is Johnny Wooden's recommendation that a basketball team must pass the ball at least once after an offensive rebound before shooting. Would help restore some finesse to the game.

SJ dominates half, loses in overtime

SAN JOSE — For the second time this season, the San Jose Earthquakes went into overtime last night as 17,143 looked on at Spartan Stadium.

The fans had to hate the result though as the Washington Diplomats took a post-OT penalty kick contest, 3-1, and with it a 1-0 victory in the game.

The 'Quakes were denied a chance to go ahead with 10 minutes left in the contest, when on a free kick by Antonio Simoes, John Rowlands, who was later thrown out of the game, headed the ball to Geoff Davies, who kicked the ball in.

However, Davies was offsides, or so the officials said.

Earthquake midfield star Ilija Mitic made his first appearance in six games with 15 left in regulation play, but his return failed to inspire the 'Quakes to a 90-minute win. The NASL's all-time scoring leader had been out with a groin injury.

The rest of the second half was a defensive with neither team able to mount much of an attack. San Jose appeared sluggish in the opening minutes of the second period.

The 'Quakes dominated play in the first half, but missed several goal opportunities.

San Jose fired ten shots on goal to seven for the Diplomats.

Paul Child in particular, was frustrated. The 'Quakes star striker missed a five-yard shot with 1:50 left in the half when defender Alex Pringle got his hand on the ball and knocked it to the right of the net — hand ball was not called.

The 'Quakes blew two more scoring opportunites within the span of two minutes. Davies missed them both.

The first chance occured with 9:35 left when, on a breakaway, Davies rushed toward the net and fired it to the right of Dip goalie Eric Martin, missing by two feet. Davies second miss came when he misfired a header amidst a throng of players and it again went to the right of the goal.

Simoes led the Earthquake attack with three first half shots on goal. Child and Leroy DeLeon each had two while Laurie Calloway, Davies and Malta DaSilva fired one official shot each.

There was one yellow card in the first half, issued to Dan McAllister when he was called for tripping.

The 'Quakes next game is at St. Louis Friday.

Lanford zips Jays, 3-0

TORONTO, Ont. — Rookie Rick Langford checked the Toronto Blue Jays on six hits and struck out eight batters as the Oakland A's record a 3-0 win at Exhibition Park here last night.

Langforf was backed by Tony Armas' two-run homer that keyed a three-run second inning rally.

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak for Langford, who won his first three decisions of the season. He walked only two batters last night.

It was the first time in Langford's last four starts that the A's were able to support him with any sort of batting attack. In the last four, Oakland scored just four runs and was shut out twice.

Toronto pitcher Pete Vukovich, making his first start of the season, walked Dick Allen to start the top of the second. Allen went to second on a fielder's choice and scored on a ground rule double by Earl Williams.

Vukovich, 2-4, then struck out Jim Tyrone, but Armas followed with his second homer of the year over the right field fence.

Orioles 6, Brewers 5 — Pat Kelly, who tied the game with an eighth - inning homer, walked with the bases loaded in the tenth to Baltimore the victory.

Ken Singleton launched the winning rally with a double off loser Jim Slaton, 2-5. Pinch - runner Larry Harlow advanced to third on a single by Lee May and Milwaukee reliever Bob McClure then intentionally walked Eddie Murray to set the stage for Kelly.

Red Sox 4, Yankees 3 — Dwight Evans and Butch Hobson belted consecutive home runs in the second inning and Hobson ignited a tie - breaking two-run eighth with a double.

Bill Lee, battling back from last season's serious shoulder injury, scattered five hits in beating the Yanks for the 12th time in 16 career decisions before Bill Campbell came on in the eighth.

ST. LOUIS — The San Francisco Giants, paced by 39 - year - old Willie McCovey, erupted for five runs in the first inning Monday night and rolled to a 7-2 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals with a 15-hit attack, their heaviest barrage of the season.

McCovey, back with the Giants after two years in San Diego, contributed two doubles and a single, driving in two runs, in the nationally televised game.

St. Louis righthander Eric Rasmussen, 2-6, bore the brunt of the early assault, departing with one out after yielding four singles and a walk.

Giants starter Ed Halicki limited St. Louis to five hits and a lone run through seven innings before leaving the game after the Cards scored with none out in the eighth on three straight hits.

Lefthander Gary Lavelle relieved Halicki, choked off the St. Louis rally with the aid of a double play and picked up his fifth save of the season.

Halicki, 3-4, posted his first career triumph over the Cardinals after four defeats. The loss was the Cards' fifth in seven games.

Bill Madlock touched off a five-run outburst by the Giants in the first inning, grounding a single into left field after Derrel Thomas grounded out.

Wicks' stick clicks — .425

Rob Wicks, pitcher turned hitter, has won the 1977 East Bay Athletic League batting title with a .425 average.

Dublin's Paul Gordon finished second at .396 following a very productive week, while Granada's Vance Rushing and Kevin Jones of Monte Vista both stood at .386.

Besides winning the batting title, Wicks topped all EBAL pitchers in strikeout - walk ratios, fanning 5.8 batters for every one he walked.

Mark Davis' trio of homers led in that category, marking the second consecutive year a junior has won the homer crown. Last year Rushing was the leader. Davis will be beack next year for Granada.

Jones was tops in triples with three, while Rushing and Wicks tied for honors in doubles with four each. Davis led the league in RBI's with 13.

A-J hoop loop MVP

NEW YORK — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the towering center of the Los Angeles Lakers, was the landslide selection Monday as the National Basketball Association's 1976-77 Most Valuable Player, the fifth time in the past seven years he has won the award.

Abdul-Jabbar, who led the Lakers to a 53-29 record in the regular season, best in the NBA, joins ex-Boston Celtics great Bill Russell as the only five-time winner of the Podoloff Trophy, named after the league's first commissioner.

"This MVP award is especially satisfying because it went along with the Lakers having such a great season," Abdul-Jabbar said. "It's a great honor to be in the company of Bill Russell."

Abdul-Jabbar was the overwhelming winner in the balloting among 247 NBA players, polled at the conclusion of the regular season. Abdul-Jabbar received 159 votes to 29 for the runnerup, center Bill Walton of the Portland Trail Blazers.

"Bill Walton is a great center, and he certainly had a great year," said Lakers Coach Jerry West. "But he is only the second-best center in basketball.

"Kareem is the best. He is the most dominating player in the game. And he has a tremendous burden because he is expected to do more than anybody in the league — score, rebound, block shots."

Abdul-Jabbar was first in the league in field goal percentage, .579; third in scoring, 26.2; second in rebounding, 13.3, and second in blocked shots, 3.18.

"I don't think I can play any better or with any more consistency," said the 7 - foot - 2 center, who celebrated his 30th birthday last month. "Once a player reaches his late 20s or early 30s, his physical ability and knowledge of the game begin to mesh. That's when a player is at his peak."

Abdul-Jabbar won the MVP award in 1971, 1972 and 1974, when he was with Milwaukee. He also won it last year, his first with the Lakers.

"Since I've been in Los Angeles, I believe I've been getting the most out of my potential," Abdul-Jabbar said. "I've matured as a player, and that's the most important part of anybody's development."

Portland's Maurice Lucas noted that Abdul-Jabbar also helps his team in ways which are intangible. "He might be the most respected player in the league. He seems to have such inner strength. You may beat his team, but you never beat him."

In the 22 years the Podoloff Trophy has been awarded, it has gone to a center 18 times. The only non-center to win it since 1960 was Oscar Robertson, MVP in 1964.

Finishing third in the balloting, behind Abdul-Jabbar and Walton, was NBA scoring champion Pete Maravich of New Orleans with 15 votes. Completing the top 10 were Bob Lanier of Detroit, Julius Erving of Philadelphia, Moses Malone of Houston, Elvin Hayes of Washington, David Thompson of Denver, Maurice Lucas of Portland and Artis Gilmore of Chicago.

LP matches over

Don Wilford defeated John DeLaveaga, six and four, to win the first flight of the Las Positas Men's Golf Club match play tournament Sunday.

In the second flight of the four - week, 96-player event, Herman DoBell nipped Don Shanks, two and one. In the third flight, it was Harry Benson, three and two over George Albrecht while Jerry Blackmore copped the fourth flight from Don Tunnicliff after a 20-hole battle.

Charles Platt annexed the fifth flight crown, four and three over M.C. Freel and Dan Newton nailed down the sixth flight laurels, two and one, beating Charles Crabb.

Erving, the budding legend

PHILADELPHIA — It's like watching a Ted Williams with a bat, an O.J. Simpson run a football, a Bobby Orr on skates. He's the ultimate in his sport of basketball. He is Julius Erving, better known to an admiring public as Dr. J.

Dr. J. orchestrates on the court like Eugene Ormandy with the Philadelphia Orchestra. He handles the basketball like a Leonard Bernstein at the piano. He's a Picasso on a wooden floor, a mixture of sinew, grace, quickness and perception.

A sellout crowd of 18,276 watched this magician of basketball spill out his limitless bag of tricks Sunday in leading the Philadelphia 76ers to a 107-101 triumph over the Portland Trail Blazers in the first game of the National Basketball Association's best - of - seven championship series.

If the victory proved anything, it was that Portland will have to find a way to defense Dr. J. if the Blazers hope to survive. It wasn't only that he scored 33 points, including 14 of 24 from the field and five of five at the foul line, or that he handed out four assists, stole the ball three times and rebounded five. It was the way he did it.

From the time that Erving, off the opening tap, swooped to the basket for a paralyzing dunk, he controlled the tempo of a very bruising confrontation between these playoff survivors. He was reminded of the remark that one fan made entering the Spectrum.

"The 76ers can't lose this series. Dr. J. won't let them," the fan said.

Erving became the $6 million man when the 76ers gave the New York Nets a reported $2.5 million for him last fall and signed the Doc to an estimated $5.3 million contract for five years. But it's not money, it's pride that is driving him in these playoffs.

Someone asked him Sunday if in the back of his mind proving that the 76ers were the best basketball team in the world isn't more important than his $23,000 share of the winner's pool.

"It's in the front of my mind, not the back of my mind," Erving replied. "I don't think that I (personally) have to prove anything to anyone."

Erving, of course, didn't win the game alone. Doug Collins scored 30 points, Henry Bibby contributed nine and keyed the offensive patterns. Centers Caldwell Jones and Darryl Dawkins did an execellent job on 6 - foot - 11 Bill Walton, despite Walton's 28 points and 20 rebounds — 17 on the defensive boards.

And Coach Gene Shue gave his Portland opposite number, Jack Ramsay, something to think about when the 76ers had their centers bring the ball up court. It was an unorthodox maneuver that forced the Blazers' guards out of their pressure defense.

But the series is far from over. Portland has Walton and Maurice Lucas and others who won't be intimidated when the series resumes here Thursday night. Their big problem is to contain No. 6 — the Doctor. When last seen Sunday, he was still pulling rabbits, or was that the NBA championship trophy, out of his sleeves?

Stark favors truck moves

"The random basis on which plutonium is moved around the country is the best security against terrorists stealing it," he said.

Dave Pingitore of the People Against Nuclear Power disagreed with the East Bay Democrat. "Our group goes beyond the ideas of Stark," he said. "He is willing to have it shipped by rail and trucks e disagree. It shouldn't be shipped at all."

Pingitore also said reasons of national security "do not justify plutonium flights in and out of Livermore's airport." He said, "National security has been used to coverup often more dangerous activities that have happened in the past."

Container tests

Tests of nuclear containers continue in the New Mexico desert. A jet-propelled tractor - trailer (above left) with a 22-ton cask containing 477 pounds of uranium is shown at the split second it smashes into a concrete wall. A millisecond later, the rig (above right) apparently disintegrates upon full impact, but the cask remains intact. "The cask deformed as predicted, and this deformation did not in any way threaten its integrity," said Robert Jefferson, head of Sandia Laboratories' Albuquerque, New Mexico nuclear fuel cycle technology development department. In the main picture at left, a smaller container, similar to those being used to transport plutonium by air, is hoisted to a point 200 feet above the ground between two mountain peaks. On command, a rocket sled pulls the container at 300 mph into a steel reinforced concrete barrier. The inset shows the cask after impact. Its inner contents, wherein five pounds of plutonium would have been stored, were undamaged. Containers currently in use are subjected to a test drop of 30 feet, immersed in water, dropped 40 inches onto a six-inch steel bar, and exposed to high temperatures for 30 minutes. Officials would not speculate when a truly "crash-resistant" container would be manufactured for regular use.

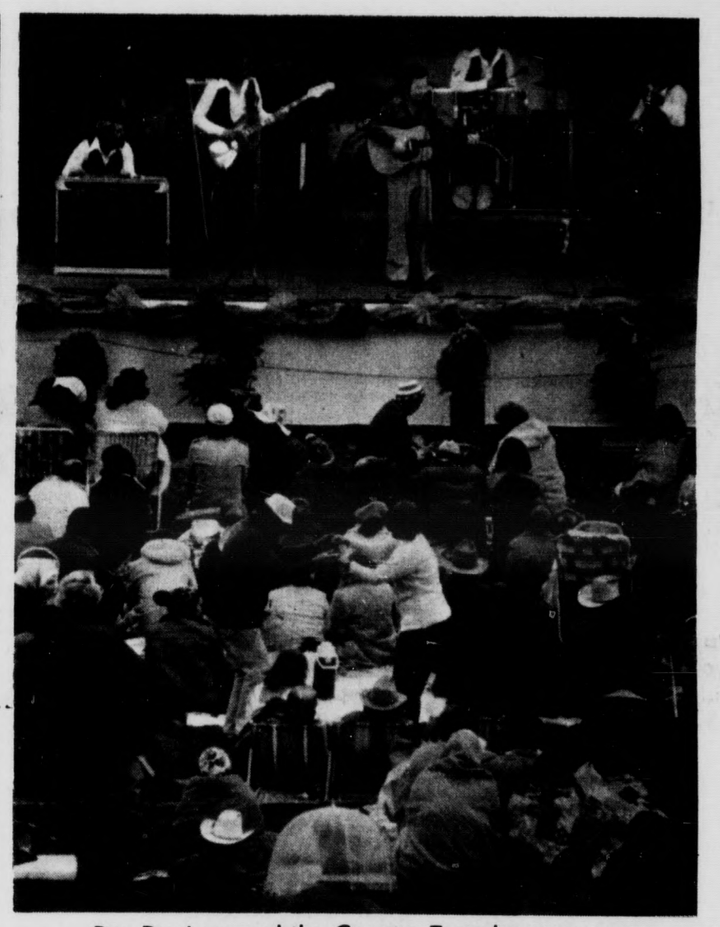
Let it rain!

They loved Tillis



Ron Dunivan and the Country Travelers were one of four local acts to please the crowd.

Jody Miller invited Ralph Bingham of San Ramon on stage for a duet and something he said tickled her fancy.

Jody's fiddle.

The rain came but everyone had fun in spite of it.

Foot stomping concert a hit

LIVERMORE — Rain may have kept away some people from the Mel Tillis concert Sunday, but it sure didn't dampen the spirit of the crowd or the entertainers.

There was plenty of head bouncing, knee slapping, foot stomping and lip kissing all over Livermore Valley Stadium, not to mention the belly stuffing as people picnicked on the field while listening to the country and western music.

The big acts were Country - Western Entertainer of the Year Mel Tillis, who had them laughing with antics he pulled off with his Statesiders Band (including slipping on a wet stage), and Jody Miller and the "Western Union."

Local bands started the afternoon's medley of music, including Orion which could have gone much longer as it pleased the crowd. Singer-guitarist Cyndee Paulson followed with a bouncy style that rang out as she tackled a tongue twisting line or two from a song about an auctioneer.

Ron Dunivan and The Country Travelers leaped to stage front with a twang that sang, including beautiful backup guitars. Included in their several numbers was a Johnny Cash rendition. Hot stuff!

The Tri-Valley Express rounded out a lively local portion of the show. They knew their music and the audience responded.

Grammy award winner Jody Miller came on strong in a wide eyed spectacle of many greats she has recorded.

She brought cheers to the stadium as she plunked on a little red fiddle and sang, "Thank God I'm a country girl."

A call came out for her to sing "House of the Rising Sun" and she replied with that favorite, along with "Queen of the House."

The big gun, Tillis, frolicked on stage with his Statesiders Band. During one scene where he chased a band member, the star slipped on his backside and turned around with a very surprised look that got him immediate sympathy from the crowd.

People continued to dance, some sought autographs, and local entertainers sought audiences with the two stars. The chill and drizzle continues, but so did the show.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband recognizes his weakness with alcohol and tries very hard to stop his drinking. He's gone as long as three months without a drink, or without anything but an occasional glass of wine on weekends. He's impossible to live with, however, during these dry periods. I Find myself almost wishing he'd have a beer or even a whisky. He senses my irritation and tension and, of course, that doesn't help him. How can I learn to be more patient and understanding of his problems? — E.B.

DEAR E.B.: The best way to gain understanding is to join others who have the same problems. There is probably an Al-Anon group in your area that would provide the support you need to get through these difficult times. Consult your telephone directory. If it isn't listed, check with Alcoholics Anonymous or the National Council on Alcoholism.

One of the reasons group therapy is so helpful is that wives and husbands of alcoholics have had to bury their feelings for long periods of time and are ready and waiting to share themselves and their problems.

A study by two University of Washington therapists identified five main problems: 1) the rebuilding of trusting family relationships; 2) establishing better communications between husband and wife; 3) restoring confidence and self - respect; 4) coping with the traits of the alcoholic personality, which don't go away simply because the drinking has stopped — traits such as moodiness, sensitivity, egocentricity and evasiveness; and 5) the very important task of helping the recovering alcoholic avoid the temptations of a drinking society.

I believe you'll find you feel much better after attending these meetings. You'll find others have similar problems and are eager to help you with yours.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I love my wife very much and don't want to lose her but as soon as I step inside my home at night, I know she's been hitting the bottle. What hurts is that she always denies it. However, she gets really drunk right after dinner because she's had so much during the day. The kids and I constantly make excuses for her "poor memory" and her antisocial behavior to neighbors. I don't want her to be hurt by gossip. Basically, she's a fine woman and I'm afraid this will just destroy her and our family. — H.R.

DEAR H.R.: I understand the reasons you and your children cover for your wife but this kind of protection is not helping her solve her problems. She has to face herself and the fact that she's in serious trouble with alcohol. She won't be able to do this until you stop making excuses.

There are an estimated five million women alcoholics in this country and a large number of them are housewives who drink at home. The home - drinker is less likely to be recognized and identified as a problem drinker because there's no employer or co - worker or a job - related program.

Alcoholism is a treatable disease but one of the typical patterns is that the problem drinker denies he or she has a problem. Nine out of 10 husbands leave alcoholic wives whereas nine out of 10 wives stay with alcoholic husbands.

Your family, your marriage and your wife are much more apt to be destroyed if you try to ignore her problem. She needs help and so do you and your children. Try the National Council of Alcoholism or Alcoholics Anonymous.

Dr. Lamb

Reason to avoid coffee

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — You advised a woman with high blood pressure not to drink coffee, tea, colas or to smoke cigarettes.

I am 76 and these past three months I have taken medicine for my blood pressure. It goes up and down so my doctor gave me medicine for it.

Should I stop using Sanka coffee? I do not smoke or use soft drinks and watch my salt. What should I drink for breakfast?

DEAR READER — In your case you can drink decaffeinated coffee, such as Sanka. I don't recommend it for people having digestive complaints. The reason for avoiding coffee is that it contains caffeine which has the opposite action of tranquilizers and medicines used to prevent or control elevated blood pressure.

A good drink for breakfast is fortified skim milk or even the low fat milk, and then there are the fruit juices. Coffee tea and cocoa are not necessary for breakfast or for any other meal. I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long stamped envelope for it. Mail your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had a hissing noise in my ears for the past two years. I had my hearing checked a year ago and the physician told me 25 per cent of my hearing in my right ear was lost. The hissing started in my right ear.

I'm 59 years old, 6 feet tall and weigh 190 pounds. A year and a half ago on my annual examination my cholesterol count was up so I was placed on a low fat diet. Despite the diet and Atromid-S my count is still not as low as it should be.

Is there any relief from this irritating noise in my ears? My doctor says this is tied in with my cholesterol count.

DEAR READER — This is one of the more annoying problems a person can experience. Hissing, roaring, buzzing or continuous noises in the ear are caused by many different factors.

One common simple cause is wax in the ear. This is not your problem I would presume because of your medical examinations.

While some such noises are caused by vascular disease many are not on this basis. The cholesterol levels you included in the rest of your letter are not exceptionally high for office determinations, but I do think it is a good idea for you to lose weight and follow measures to keep your cholesterol level within normal levels.

You should have a consultation with an ear, nose and throat specialist. Some cases are caused by associated hearing problems that can be corrected. An example here is disease of the small hearing bones in the middle ear that can become inflamed or ossified together (otosclerosis). Some of these cases can be treated.

ARIES (Marcy 21-April 19) You impress and win people over to your side today because of who and what you are. Gifts and other flattering gestures are superfluous.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Let compassion rule your actions today. If you want to do something out of the goodness of your heart, go ahead though others feel it's illogical.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Not only will you enjoy yourself more, but you'll please your friends if you overlook their minor faults and concentrate on praising their virtues.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try not to let side issues distract you if you have an important career or financial goal in your sights today. Stay on target.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Use your wit, charm and imagination to go after what you want today. Hard-sell tactics will be far less successful.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) People want to do nice things for you today, but don't outline for them how to go about it. Let them follow their own ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone you know may seek your assistance today. Listen and try to advise this person, but don't subsidize your friend. Money is not the answer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll outstrip your competition today in areas you feel strongly about. In things where your interest is lukewarm, the results will be similar.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're extremely competent in handling others today where you lead by example. To look for them to do what you can't or won't is foolish.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) No challenge is too great for you today if it's for unselfish purposes. You can rise to any occasion provided the motivation is a noble one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may have a situation involving a friend that's tough to resolve. Solicit your mate's advice. His or her idea is different, but more workable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Favorable opportunities abound for you today. Take care not to offend anyone in a position to influence a raise or promotion.

Q. "WHAT IS AN ARCHERFISH?"
A. THE ARCHERFISH IS A FISH THAT FEEDS ON INSECTS BY SHOOTING THEM DOWN WITH A SQUIRT OF WATER
TIM FOX

The archerfish is well named. It feeds by shooting down insects with a squirt of water.

This small, silvery fish lives in the waters of southeast Asia. It swims near the top of the water, looking for flies and other insects that might be buzzing around or sitting on a twig just above the water.

When the archerfish sees a fly, it pushes its snout out of the water and squirts a fine stream of water at the fly. The water knocks the fly down, and the archerfish catches it and swallows it.

The archerfish usually hits with the first shot. But if it happens to miss its target, it quickly corrects its aim and almost always makes a hit with the second try. It can shoot a stream of water several feet into the air to hit insects.

The jet of water is squirted through a groove in the roof of its mouth. The groove works much like the barrel of a squirt gun when the fish presses its tongue against it.

Jim: "Since we mentioned the principle of restricted choice last week, we ought to try to explain it this week."

Oswald: "Try, is correct. We will devote a few articles to it this week. If any readers don't understand it after our explanations, we ask them to take it on faith. There are plenty of top players who don't understand it either."

Jim: "South finds himself in a normal four-spade contract. East wins the first trick with the ace of hearts and returns the deuce to his partner's king. West shifts to the deuce of clubs. South wins and leads a trump toward dummy. West plays the queen and South puts up dummy's king. Then if he knows about restricted choice, he finesses against East's jack and makes his contract."

Oswald: "The reason for this is that when West played the queen, he was either playing it from singleton queen or doubleton queen-jack. If he had held the doubleton he might well have played the jack, not the queen. Hence, it was more likely that the queen had been a singleton and the finesse was indicated."

Mark Harmon stars as an officer who fights crime with his partner, a Labrador retriever, in "Sam," an action - drama airing Tuesday night at 8 p.m. on Channels 10 and 44.

Dog Becomes Crime Buster

Sam, a specially-trained yellow Labrador retriever, joins the Los Angeles Police Department and soon proves his worth in a series of gripping searches, pursuits and arrests, in "Sam," a half-hour action drama airing Tuesday night at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 10 and 44.

Mark Harmon stars as Mike Breen, the young officer assigned as Sam's partner in a new man - and - dog patrol - car unit designated Two Henry Six.

Gary Crosby stars as Captain Gene Cody, who is Breen's boss and a skeptic about Sam's crime - busting ability.

Breen is doubtful about his new role when he finds himself paired up with the dog and undergoing training with other rookie cop - and - dog teams.

Twenty - one weeks later, Breen is back in Los Angeles and on duty with Sam. The pair face their first tests as they take on a liquor - store stickup, a search for a bomb planted in a city office, a pursuit of a hit - and - run driver, and armed fugitives holed up in a dark warehouse.

Make 'em laugh not only way

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Consider that ABC, first in primetime ratings most of this season, has 12 comedy shows on its fall roster. Consider that NBC, third in ratings this season, has but five comedies next fall.

Consider that ABC programs chief Fred Silverman thinks the network with the most hit comedy shows is the dominant network. We now yield the floor to Irwin Segelstein, his counterpart at NBC.

"That's because he has a lot of comedies," Segelstein says. "Sounds a little self-serving, doesn't it."

Segelstein's theory, which sounds quite reasonable, is that "hits of any kind make you the dominant network."

He was asked if he didn't load up on comedies as did ABC and CBS — the latter has eight sitcoms for next fall — because he felt there were too many of them, that it'd be the best to combat them with other shows.

"Well, a hit is a hit," he said. "If you have a great comedy, it'll work even though there are many comedies on the air."

But what he fears, he added, is that television could run into a surfeit of comedies, just as in the 1960s there was a flood of Westerns and until recently a glut of gumshoe, cops and robbers shows.

"You've got to be selective," he said. "When you see opportunities to counterprogram, even though you may have a comedy, you try the other show, put on drama against comedy, or variety against comedy."

He cited as an example the 9 to 10 p.m. slot on Tuesdays next fall, which ABC is filling with "Three's Company" and "Soap" and CBS with "M*A*S*H" and "One Day at a Time." All are situation comedies.

"Obviously, it makes sense to counterprogram there," he said, having picked "Big Hawaii," a new hour series about a rich, troubled ranching family, as his instrument of war in that time period.

Segelstein feels "it's hard to say that having a 'Maude' or a 'Rhoda' gives you a hit schedule, although they are very big shows. But a very big show like 'Charlie's Angels' is not a comedy.

"I think what we should do is provide some sort of balance each night of the week, where each network provides something different so there's a choice. And the alternative and the choice is what ususally gets the audience."

Tax relief may double

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's state budget surplus will climb to an estimated $2.745 billion during the next 13 months, double the previous record surplus, state Director of Finance Roy Bell said today.

Bell told the Senate Finance Committee that state revenues are higher than previous estimates, and spending in lower than budgeted, especially in school support and welfare.

The surplus figure is $990 million higher than estimates in January, but more than half of it will be spent on property tax relief, school finance bills and other new spending measures under the plan presented today to the legislature.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. said Sunday that — based on the expected increase in the state surplus — he will, without raising taxes, nearly double the property tax relief proposed in his tax reform bill.

Bell outlined a plan that will increase Brown's tax relief bill from $480 million to $750 million a year. A separate tax measure endorsed for the first time today by Brown would increase the total proposed relief to $785 million.

Bell said that by the end of the current fiscal year in 5½ weeks, the surplus in the state's current $13.3-billion budget will have grown to $1.507 billion, or 11.3 per cent of the total.

A separate surplus of $242 million in revenue sharing brings the total surplus to $1.745 billion.

That is $617 million more than the surplus estimates by Bell's office in January. The budget director said he has revised revenue estimates upward by $354 million and that state spending is $263 million less than the earlier estimate.

Basketball A TV Hit

CBS, which will televise all seven games of the National Basketball Association finals starting this Sunday at 10:30 a.m. is pleased with its NBA ratings for the season.

The numbers, counting games from the start of the season through May 8, are up 24 per cent over last season. Two factors are cited for the increase: the network went with more regional games than ever before and the merger brought a lot of new talent and interest into the league.

WE WORKED TEN YEARS TO COME UP WITH A LOW 'TAR' YOU WON'T GIVE UP IN TEN MINUTES.

A lot of smokers never get through their first pack of low 'tar' cigarettes. And if they do, they usually don't come back for more.

The reason, of course, is taste. Originally, you couldn't get real cigarette taste without what has come to be known as tobacco 'tar.' The problem of reducing this 'tar' to 5mg. while maintaining taste is enormous. Decade is the first low 'tar' to have succeeded in doing just that.

The Decade "Total System."

How were we able to keep the taste in a low 'tar' when so many others have failed? Mainly by developing our unique "Total System" in which every part of a Decade cigarette is arranged in perfect balance with each other. The tobacco, the filter, and even the paper. Only by concentrating on these parts were we able to perfect the whole.

The Tobacco. "Flavor Packing"™ plus fifteen tobaccos boost taste.

Take the tobacco, for example. Its taste is boosted by a very unique method called "Flavor Packing" which allows us to concentrate a special patented tobacco flavorant in each Decade cigarette.

The Filter.
Unique "Taste Channel" gives first puff impact.

Our filtration process is also unique. Simply, we've created a "Taste Channel" within the filter to give you that first puff impact you've come to expect from only the higher 'tar' cigarettes.

The Paper. High porosity paper controls burn rate.

Even our high porosity paper is specifically designed to give an efficient burn rate that delivers optimum taste with a minimum of 'tar.'

The result.
A completely new kind of low 'tar' cigarette.

So try a pack for yourself. Regular or Menthol. And you'll find out why your first pack of Decade won't be your last.

Only 5 mg. 'tar.'

Regular and Menthol.
